THE CHURCHES.

At the Methodist Church, the cold and bad weather did not prevent the church from being very well attended. Bishop Lloyd preached an excellent sermon and confirmed two young ladies. The services were very impressive.

At St. Paul's in the morning in the presence of a large congregation Mr. John Lewis Tracy Gilbre, formerly of Lexington, but now a resident of Washington, was ordained to the diaconate by Bishop M. Randolph, of the diocese of Southern Virginia.

The candidate for orders was presented by Rev. R. J. McBryde, D. D., of Fredericksburg, and the other assisting were Rev. E. P. Phillips, rector of St. Paul's; Rev. David Barr, of Washington; Rev. W. C. Callender, of Falls Church; Rev. Mr. Phillips preached the morning sermon. At night at St. Paul's Bishop Randolph preached an able and eloquent sermon.

At the M. E. Church South at night Rev. T. J. Prentiss, presiding elder of this district, conducted the services and preached an able sermon.

The services in the other churches were conducted by their respective pastors.

A WARNING TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

A few weeks ago a strange youth went to a residence in this city and told the lady of the house that one of the male members of the family had sent him for his overcoat. The lady, supposing the youth had been sent for the coat, turned it over to him. That was the last she saw of the juvenile intruder. A few days ago a respectable looking young man went to a house in the First ward and told a member of the family he had been sent by the man of the house for a violin. The instrument was turned over to him but neither the man nor the violin has since been located by the owner. About nine o'clock last Saturday night a man appeared at a house on South Lee street and told the lady of the house that her husband had sent for his umbrella. The unsuspecting wife turned the umbrella over to the stranger who proved to be an impostor.

A strange man sent a youth to the residence of Mr. William S. Cossabone, 307 North Patrick street, last Saturday night, and told him to say to Mrs. Cossabone that her husband had sent for his watch. The timepiece was given to the lad, who turned it over to the stranger.

POLICE COURT.

[Justice H. B. Caton presiding.] The first case being called in the Police Court this morning was that of James Brown, a soldier, who had been arrested for disorderly conduct. He could not be found and forfeited his collateral by failing to appear.

Fannie Steward, colored, next faced the bar to answer the charge of assaulting a colored girl. The trouble, it seemed, originated in clearing up the accounts of the Silver Leaf Club, Fannie, who is treasurer, had been charged by one of the members with transferring some of the money to another colored association known as the Hand-to-Hand Club. This charge so angered the Stewart woman that she slapped the girl and when the mother of the latter appeared on the scene she, it was alleged, threatened to do likewise. The accused was dismissed with an admonition. She was represented by Mr. Robinson Moncreur.

LOCAL MUSICIAN IN CONCERT.

The third musicale of the series by the Washington Saengerbund was held last evening at Saengerbund Hall. Among the soloists of the evening was Mr. Walter H. Kelley, who has recently opened up a studio in Alexandria. One of the Washington papers says:

One of the features of the evening was the piano solos of Walter H. Kelley, of Alexandria, who played his Chopin and Schumann numbers with ease and finish. Mr. Kelley's technique is excellent and he plays with fine expression.

Music lovers will soon have an opportunity of hearing Mr. Kelley in concert.

L. Allen & Company. Little booths have been erected in each of these places and are presided over by a number of young ladies in the effort to eliminate this dread disease. The seals are being sold at one cent each.

COLORED MAN ASSAULTED.

Herbert Davis, colored, about thirty years old, was taken to the Alexandria Hospital in an ambulance last Saturday night suffering from an ugly cut over the nose. He claimed he had been assaulted at the Union railway station by another colored man. He was attended by Dr. W. M. Smith. Davis is employed at the incinerating plant at Cherry Hill. It was at first supposed the man had been struck by a horse, but it was found lying in the snow near the station.

Judge Barley gave his charge to the jury and called attention to the matter of proper fire inspection of all buildings in the city, and stated that information had come to him that the recommendations of the grand jury reported at the March term, 1908, had not been complied with. [The jury between 12 and 1 o'clock inspected the Braddock House and ordered that a door be opened in the southern end of the building on Fairfax street. The grand jury also inspected the Opera House and Lee and Washington school buildings.]

An extraordinary interest was aroused in the House today by the introduction of an inheritance tax bill for the District of Columbia. THE PASSING OF THE WILD TURKEY.

Ever since Virginia has been Virginia the wild turkey has held his position as her chief game bird. His title to this position has never been disputed, and he has struttured through Virginia forests and over her hills and valleys since the white man landed on these shores, proud of his ascendancy. His pursuit has attracted to Virginia chief magistrates of this country and hundreds of men of note, while his presence has always afforded the sport of kings for the humblest of our people.

In this portion of Virginia the wild turkey is passing away. The general Assembly of Virginia was wise when in 1908 it enacted a law prohibiting the sale of the partridge, the pheasant and the woodcock, but it was grossly negligent in not adding the wild turkey to the list. As a result he has been hunted and pursued for market purposes in this section of Virginia until today it is a safe assertion that in the counties of Stafford and Spotsylvania, where hitherto turkeys have abounded, there are but few left, and the same conditions no doubt apply to Orange, Culpeper and Loudoun.

Along the upper course of the Rappahannock, where the forests still stand grim and unpenetrable as they did when two great armies were battling in these confines, the wild turkey up to in years of ago was plentiful, but see unrelenting and persistent has been his pursuit that even these dark woods no longer furnish him protection and he is gradually being exterminated.

From what we can gather this condition is not confined to this section, but obtains in every part of the state. No power except the general assembly, which meets in 1912, can save the turkey, and to take action from the assembly it will be necessary for the press of the state and those persons interested in the preservation of our remaining game to unite against pot hunters and commission men, who always oppose this character of legislation.

Let the newspapers take this matter up and insist on a bill which will for several years to come prohibit the killing of the turkey. If this isn't done in a few years Virginia hills and valleys will know him no more.—[Fredericksburg Star.]

HOW RED CROSS PROCEEDS ARE DIVIDED.

Many questions have been asked regarding the disposition of funds from the Red Cross seal campaign which has now been in progress here for a week. The people, while approving the general purpose of this sale, are anxious to know for what object the funds will be used and those in charge of the sale have had many inquiries during the last few days.

In reply to these inquiries the committee has asked the newspapers to make the following statement:

"The Red Cross seal campaign is the one appeal made to the whole people of the United States in behalf of tuberculosis work. At this time and at no other time all charitable bodies in the country engage in raising funds to combat consumption and united to asking the friends of this work everywhere to use these seals. In Virginia there are at present 25,000 cases of consumption and of this number only about 50 per cent. are able to pay for the necessary treatment. The funds raised from the Red Cross seals go directly to the care of these people and to the education of others in the prevention of consumption. Fifty per cent. of the proceeds of the sale go directly to the relief of consumptives in this locality. 37 1/2 per cent. of the proceeds go to the aid of the work of the State Anti-Tuberculosis Association which is carrying on an educational campaign in other cities and counties of Virginia; the remaining 12 1/2 per cent. of the proceeds is used for the tuberculosis work of the National Red Cross. We appeal to all friends of tuberculosis work in our midst to aid this cause at this time and to use the beautiful Red Cross seals as a means of preventing the disease and curing those who are now suffering from it."
